

Initialization Process

Linux has lots of programs running in the background
The `init` program starts these program when Linux starts up
This is called the initialization process

Initialization Process Methods

Depend on distro:

- Unix System V (also called SysV)
- systemd
- Upstart